

An aerial photograph of a modern hotel complex in a desert landscape. The main building is a large, white, multi-story structure with a flat roof covered in solar panels. It has several balconies and a prominent arched entrance. To the right, there are smaller, white, rectangular buildings. The surrounding area is arid, with sparse vegetation, including palm trees and cacti. A dirt road winds through the landscape. In the foreground, a few cars are parked on a dirt area, and a person is walking. The overall scene is bright and sunny, with a clear sky.

Rarely are there turn-key projects ready for operation in a fast-growing area like Baja California Sur.

"So Far So Good" is a successful boutique hotel created in 2022, featuring 12 bedrooms and 12 bathrooms.

The Baja experience begins inside its double-height cafeteria/lobby, with a rooftop deck that houses a night bar for whale watching and expansive sunset views.

Its avant-garde architectural design, curated furniture, and folkloric color palette evoke contemporary Mexico, crafted by architect Ana Cristina Ortega.
